POLYDAYS 2014

Beyond Self Assembly - Making Polymeric Materials More Versatile

September 30th - October 2nd, 2014
Technische Universität Berlin

Polydays 2014

Polymers are in the center of modern material science and technologies. The advantageous properties of both biological and synthetic polymers can be custom designed and fine-tuned by controlling their chemical structure and—often hierarchical—supramolecular organization, in order to obtain functional systems capable of performing complex tasks. Polydays 2014 aims to highlight the exciting science currently going on from the molecular level to the functional material. The conference addresses the multiscale approach with respect to time- and length scales. It has a strong interdisciplinary Ansatz between physics, chemistry, biology and polymer technology. The Polydays series is organized biannually by the Berlin-Brandenburg Association of Polymer Science (BVP) and dedicated to modern topics of polymer research.

Plenary Speakers
Ralph Colby, PennState, USA
Stephan Förster, Bayreuth, Germany
Wilhelm Huck, Nijmegen, Netherlands
Dieter Neher, Potsdam, Germany
Catherine Picart, Grenoble, France
Mitchell Winnik, Toronto, Canada

Chairpersons
Regine von Klitzing, Technische Universität Berlin, Germany
Michael Gradzielski, Technische Universität Berlin, Germany

Organisation
BVP Berlin-Brandenburgischer Verband für Polymerforschung, Germany

Scientific Committee
Regine von Klitzing
Michael Gradzielski
Jürgen P. Rabe
Manfred Hennecke
Rainer Haag
Manfred H. Wagner
Andreas Lendlein

Financial Support

Deadlines
June 15th - Abstract and poster submission
August 1st - Early bird registration

Fees
Early bird registration:
• regular 160 €
• reduced* 130 €
Late registration:
• regular 260 €
• reduced* 185 €
*special discount for students only
